
AS THE WOOD TURNS

September 2006 Issue 112

Always Use Protection When Saving Your Newsletters

Mike Wells wanted to protect his Newsletters and after seeing the binder made by Don Diedrich for the Christmas Party Raffle, won by Jeff Keller, he used his scroll saw expertise to fabricate this binder. He used considerable intimidation to make sure it made the cover!

President's Report and General Business

Hank received Craft Supplies catalogs for distribution along with $15 gift certificates to be auctioned. The metal spinnings from last meeting will also be in the auction.

He heard from Lyle Jamieson who will demonstrate for $500 plus expenses. Many of our members saw him demonstrate in November 2004 in Rhode Island, and it was mostly a demo for his deep hollowing system and carving so we saw no need for a demo at this time.

Newsletters were received from CNEW and the Surrey group in England for members to review.

Jeff reported for Treasurer Wally Kemp as he is recovering for knee surgery. He is "Receiving visitors". There is $582 in treasury.

Audubon Farm Day is Saturday, September 30. It was agreed we would again exhibit at Audubon Headquarters during November/December.

Lenny the Librarian reported one tape out for 2 months.

Mal reported that Charlie Rosen is working on our web site to add more features and information for our members. It's a work in progress but up and running.

Glass globes were available for $1.00 each for the lacemaker lamps.

A binder with information on a new tool company, Steel City Tools, who is selling a new mini lathe as well as a complete line of machine tools.

Also in the binder were complete details on the history of lacemaker lamps and photographs of turned lamps.

Membership lists were made available.

An article on Lathe Maintenance by Judy Ditmer is in the October 2006 Popular Woodworking Magazine.

A Hand's On session was scheduled for Saturday, September 9th. at 10am. Nigel will be demonstrating at September meeting.

Andy Osborne reported on the Yankee Woodturners Symposium to be held June 1,2,3, 2007 at Wesleyan University, Middletown, CT. Many demonstrators are willing to appear. Some are local Connecticut and New England turners as well as turners who have big reputations. Beth Ireland will be among them.

Plans are being made to accommodate space for 50 vendors. Fee to attend will be in the $100-150 range. Dorm's will be available for $35/night.

Volunteers are still needed. A committee Description and Volunteer Statement, with committee contact information, was E-Mailed to members.

Ken reported that at a show in Nashua, NH his display resulted in only 2 pieces being sold for $150 each, all day.

The Corn Festival will be held September 16 at Norwell Science Center. Volunteers to demonstrate were asked for and a number of members came forward.

There was a show and tell for the Brolly bird by Ken and Andy.

The Ocean Woodturners of Rhode Island will have a Professional Demonstration by Mike Allison, Saturday, October 14, 2006 at the North Kingstown Library, 9:00 AM to 3:00 PM $10 per person. Mike specializes in piercings and adding coloring to turnings.
